ROOSEVELT TOUR TO WEST DETAILED; WILL START JULY 7

Trip Will Take Him to 4
States Where Senators
Are Up for Re-election;
Plans Talks From Train

EXECUTIVE PLANS MAJOR ADDRESS

President Will Return
From Pacific on Ship and Stop in Georgia.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced details today for his forthcoming western trip, including scheduled major addresses in Ohio, Kentucky and Oklahoma.

Leaving Washington July 7, the President will speak July 8 at the Northwest Territory celebration at Marietta, Ohio, and at Latonia race track in Covington, Ky. On July 9 he will make an address at the fair grounds in Oklahoma City.

He also will make off-the-train appearances at Amarillo, Texas, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego, Cal., and probably will speak at all four.

Will Review Fleet.

Mr. Roosevelt will review the United States fleet at San Francisco July 14.

Speeches already scheduled from the rear platform on his train include Louisville and Bowling Green, Ky., July 8, and Pueblo, Colo., July 12. A number of other platform appearances probably will be made, since the President's prearranged schedules for trips rarely include all stops he actually makes.

Mr. Roosevelt's plans will take him into four states where Democratic senators, claiming his support, are seeking re-election. The Marietta address will take him into the territory where Senator Robert J. Bulkley is campaigning for another term.

The three Kentucky speeches will place him in the middle of the hot fight in which Alben W. Barkley, Democratic leader of the senate, is opposed for renomination by Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Thomas Makes Plans.

Arrangements for his Oklahoma City speech were made by Senator Elmer Thomas, who is opposed for renomination by Governor E. W. Marland and Representative George Smith.

Senator William G. McAdoo was active in urging the chief executive to stop for speeches in California, near the end of his train trip, which ends July 18 at San Diego. At that port he will board the cruiser Houston for two weeks of cruising and fishing in the Pacific.

The President's Pueblo, Colo., appearance will be in the home state of Senator Alva B. Adams, who has opposed some of the administration's policies. There has been talk that Mr. Roosevelt would speak in Georgia and South Carolina when he returns from the cruise. In Georgia, Senator Walter F. George, an active opponent of many administration moves, is up for renomination.

South Carolina's Senator E. D. Smith, a frequent administration

SUPERINTENDENT NAMED AT GRADY

Dr. J. M. Beeler Resigns Hospital Post in Spartanburg, S. C., To Accept

Dr. J. M. Beeler, superintendent of the General Hospital in Spartanburg, S. C., has resigned to become superintendent of Grady Hospital, it was announced in Spartanburg yesterday.

Members of the board of trustees of Grady said Dr. Beeler had offered the position, but they had not been notified of his acceptance.

Dr. Beeler's resignation in Spartanburg is effective July 15, trustee of the Spartanburg hospital said.

If Dr. Beeler accepts the Grady post and is formally elected by the board of trustees, he will take over the work being done by Dr. Russell Oppenheimer, dean of the Emory University Medical school, who has been acting superintendent of Grady since John B. Franklin resigned several months ago to accept the superintendency of the Archbold Memorial Hospital at Thomasville.

T. K. Glenn, chairman of the Grady board, said he had been negotiating with Dr. Beeler for several weeks.

Dr. Beeler, a native of Louisville, Ky., had been superintendent of the Spartanburg hospital for 13 years. He studied medicine at the University of Louisville and was an interne at the Connecticut State hospital.

Mother Is Arrested In Death of Her Baby

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 1.—(AP)—Sheriff E. V. Hilyer said today Mrs. Annie Mae Hester, 20, had been arrested in connection with the death Monday of her two and one-half month old daughter, Betty.

The sheriff said her husband, Charlie Hester, 23-year-old WPA worker, was also under arrest. He said County Police Chief R. B. Carter had sworn out a warrant charging murder and a preliminary hearing would be scheduled for next week.

Sheriff Hilyer said a coroner's jury found the baby died of a broken neck and other injuries caused by "abuse."

BANK IS ACCUSED OF POLICY SWITCH FOR SON OF F.D.R.

Institution's Counsel Denies Young Roosevelt 'Personally' Concerned, Says No Political Gains.

BROKER IS SEEKING $31,750 AND INTEREST

Bank Official Quoted as Saying He Wanted Jimmy To Get Business.

BOSTON, July 1.—(AP)—A court-appointed auditor today heard a charge that one of Boston's biggest banks switched the handling of an $800,000 policy from one insurance firm to another "because it wanted James Roosevelt to get the commission."

Climaxing the first phase of a legal battle, counsel for Arthur D. Cronin, an insurance broker who is seeking $31,750 plus interest in a civil suit against the National Shawmut Bank, asserted the bank had withheld the lucrative policy from its client at the last minute in order to give it to an agency with which the eldest son of the President was associated.

After a counter assertion by the bank's counsel that James Roosevelt was not "personally" concerned, and that there was no evidence of any "political gain" by the bank, the auditor retired to prepare his report. He was named by the Suffolk superior court to determine findings of fact in the case. Cronin already has demanded a jury trial.

The insurance, under a group plan, covers a bank department which specializes in financing automobile installment payments.

Romney Spring, attorney for Cronin, declared two vice presidents of the bank had granted that they attempted "to throw the commissions into the hands of O'Brien, Russell," the insurance agency with which young Roosevelt was associated.

Nelson admitted he failed to call a doctor and confessed beating his wife, and the jury found him guilty of manslaughter. He appealed and is now free under $4,000 bond, the solicitor general revealed tonight.

The woman had been beaten severally days before, but died from kidney poisoning, physicians testified at the trial.

Free Pending Appeal.

Nelson admitted he failed to call a doctor and confessed beating his wife, and the jury found him guilty of manslaughter. He appealed and is now free under $4,000 bond, the solicitor general said.

In his verbal confession yesterday, Nelson said he planned the killing of his 10-year-old son, J. C. Nelson, with two waitresses, Mary Kent, 19, and Verna Mae Fowler, 18, both of whom lived and worked in his combination roadhouse.

Nelson said the women "drew straws" to see which would shoot his son and that Verna Mae Fowler fired the shot from a .38 revolver on May 26. The youth was shot in the chest.

A coroner's jury, discounting testimony of the women and the boy's father, who said they saw him shoot himself, returned a verdict of death at "the hands of persons unknown." They were

'Straw' Death Is Second Laid To Ware Man

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 1.—Harvey Nelson, 35, the man who charged yesterday that two waitresses employed by him "drew straws" to determine which would kill his 10-year-old son for a $900 life insurance policy, is under conviction for manslaughter in the death of his wife in 1936, Solicitor General John S. Gibson revealed tonight.

The solicitor general, who said Nelson "is the strangest man I ever knew," said the filling station-roadhouse operator was convicted in Coffee county superior court in October, 1936, after Mrs. Nelson had been found dead at their home in Douglas. WIDOW CONDEMNS CRITICISM HEAPED UPON LONGSTREET

Southern Politicians Are Blamed for Charge of 'Procrastination' in Attacking at Gettysburg.

TRUSTED BY LEE, DETRACTORS TOLD

She Says 'Lies Were Spread' When General Espoused G.O.P. Ticket.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Dortch Longstreet, of Lorton, Va., tonight blamed on "southern politicians" criticism heaped on the head of her husband, General James E. Longstreet, after the Battle of Gettysburg.

"Up until 1870 there was never a word against General Longstreet's military record," she asserted in an interview. "He was raised by an act of the Confederacy to second command to General Lee."

"He was Lee's most trusted lieutenant in every engagement. Their relations were as affectionate as brothers up until the day Lee died."

Some historians and military tacticians in recent years have attributed the Confederate rebuff at Gettysburg to Longstreet's "procrastination" in ordering Pickett to charge the center of the Federal lines.

"There wasn't a minute of delay in that charge," Mrs. Longstreet said. "General Longstreet executed instantly every order of his commander."

"All morning of July 3, 1863, 75 years ago, Lee wandered over the battlefield, uncertain where the charge was to be made."

"After the battle, Lee sent Longstreet to Chickamauga. Would he have done that if Longstreet had betrayed him?"

Ennity toward her husband, she said, arose during the years of "reconstruction."

"General Longstreet felt the glorious lost cause was lost forever; he felt that the Republican ticket offered a more constructive program than the southern politicians hated him for that, and spread those lies about his military record."

Amid charge and denial that the national political situation had played a part in the assigning of the insurance in June of 1934, Spring declared:

"There had been a national election. But whether that had any effect is a matter only of inference."

"James Roosevelt had nothing personally to do with this insurance," asserted Attorney Robert Dodge, speaking for the bank.

"We were asked to show our books covering our government deposits in the hope they would show something political. But

WPA Offers 3 Million For 'Odd Jobs' in City

Between 3,000 and 4,000 Persons Will Be Put to Work If Council Will Provide the Materials.

COST TO ATLANTA PUT AT 'NOTHING'

Nearly All of Projects Will Be Done With a Shovel, Official Says.

"Odd job" projects totaling more than $3,000,000 will be started by the WPA in Atlanta within a short time if city council Tuesday approves making formal application to WPA officials for the work, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction of the city, said yesterday.

Submitting the proposal to the finance committee yesterday, Donaldson said between 3,000 and 4,000 men would be put to work on open channel storm sewer extensions, landscaping and clearing up the 60 or more miles of sewer lines in the $8,000,000 metropolitan sewer program.

The WPA now has approximately 17,000 men certified for work relief and projects are needed to provide them with work, it was said.

Donaldson said the city will have to furnish materials for the "odd job" projects, but added that practically all of them would entail little expense other than the labor, for which the WPA would pay.

Detailed plans for the various projects to be done under the program are to be worked out by Donaldson and his engineers if council votes to make the formal application.

The construction chief indicated WPA officials will approve all the projects to be done by the city officially sponsors the program.

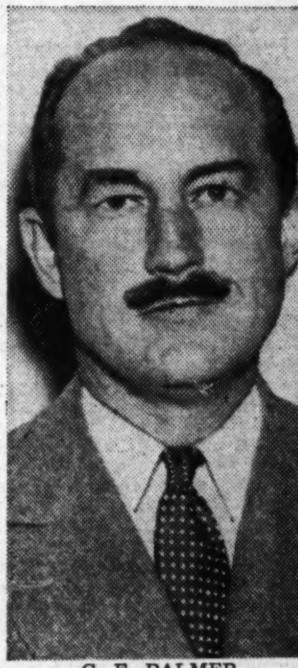

"This work, which is very necessary, will cost the city practically nothing," Alderman Ed A. Gilham, chairman of the finance committee, said.

"Nearly all the projects will be shovel work," Donaldson said. "The men will smooth over the ditches dug for the sewers in the metropolitan sewer program and will put the ground in good shape. They will plant grass and shrubbery on the land that was torn up on private property and will landscape the grounds of the various disposal plants."

"Construction of storm sewers is the most important item. The city will be called on to supply materials, but there will be only a small expense in comparison to the work done," he asserted.

The construction chief indicated WPA officials will approve all the projects to be done by the city officially sponsors the program.

"They will be financed by money from the $60,000,000 construction fund authorized under the federal public buildings appropriation act of 1938. This amounts to $70,000,000 fund allocated in the act of August 25, 1937.

U.S. GARAGE HERE TO COST $285,000

Funds for Construction Approved by Morgenstern, Postmaster Farley

An allocation of $285,000 for the construction of a government garage here was approved yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The project was one of nine in the state which will involve a total outlay of more than $1,000,000. Rome ranked second to Atlanta with $280,000 for extension and remodeling of the post office and courthouse there.

"It will provide employment for practically all of the many carpenters, brick masons, roofers, iron and sheet metal workers, lathers, cement finishers, plasterers, electricians and other members of the building trades craft," O. M. Harper, member of the housing authority and a member of the carpenters' union, declared.

"Just as the Techwood and University housing projects put hundreds to work and fed hungry people, the new slum-clearance projects will aid the unemployed skilled

ECONOMIC SURVEY OF SOUTH ORDERED BY THE PRESIDENT

Asks NEC To Report on Conditions; Advisory Body Called.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt, it was learned today, has asked the National Emergency Council to report to him on economic conditions in the south.

The success of the unusual undertaking, a high government official said, will determine whether similar surveys will be made of New England and the industrial east, the far west, the farm belt and other areas with common economic interests.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote Lowell Mellett, executive director of the council, that the studies should produce "a clear and concise statement" of the needs and problems of the different sections of the country.

Attention Focused.

"Attention has recently been focused particularly upon the south in connection with the wages and hours bill," the President's letter said.

Acting on Mr. Roosevelt's instructions, Mellett had called a meeting of 29 prominent southern citizens and public officials for next Tuesday. These men will serve as an advisory committee in preparing the southern study on the basis of government information already compiled.

The group, which includes one Governor—Carl Bailey, of Arkansas—and utilities executives, lawyers, college presidents, bankers, businessmen, AFL and CIO executives and others, will be supplied with data by federal experts.

Major Topics Covered.

The latter also will address the conference, scheduled to last either one or two days. It will cover all major topics bearing directly on conditions in the south.

These include industry ownership, indigenous industry, labor and employment, relief, taxation, credit, farm ownership and income, soil erosion and flood control, land use (one crop farming and the like), capital resources, education and housing, population trends, women and children in industry, and health.

An administration official explained the southerners will apply to the experts' findings their own personal knowledge of conditions in their section. Out of this "meeting of minds," he said, will come the information finally transmitted to the President.

Purpose Not Explained.

What use Mr. Roosevelt intends to make of this and other similar reports, other than to transmit it to Congress and relate it to the public, was not explained.

He might, however, employ it in connection with the establishment of the new wage-hour system and in evolving new economic programs either for the whole nation or for various sections.

Southern opposition to the wage-hour bill blocked its consideration in the house for months and then forced its return to the house labor committee. Finally it was passed near the end of the 1938 session.

The southerners complained that a fixed and comparatively high minimum wage, coupled with a compulsory short work week, would cripple southern industry. It would be placed at a disadvantage, they said, with eastern and midwestern competitors near big marketing centers.

As enacted, the legislation empowers special boards to unify the wage standards by particular industries. Some southern congressmen said this would permit more lenient standards for the south.

The text of Mr. Roosevelt's letter to Mellett follows:

"Discussions in congress and elsewhere in connection with legislation affecting the economic welfare of the nation have served to point out the differences in the problems and needs of the differ-

Atlantan Named to Advisory Body Is Experienced in Social Work

Miss Mason Is Public Relations Representative for TWOC.

Miss Lucy Randolph Mason, one of three Georgians on the National Emergency Council has asked to aid in compiling a report to President Roosevelt on economic conditions in the south, has a wide background of experience in activities aimed at social reforms and industrial organization.

Although declined to talk about the coming conference, Miss Mason, who is leaving tonight for Washington, told something of her own life and issued a statement on the wage-and-hour bill.

"The wage-and-hour bill will not only improve the condition of southern workers," her statement said, "but will stabilize industry and aid the south as a whole."

Ad Organization.

"It will aid rather than hinder organization of workers because they will want wages to rise above the minimum, and will find by experience as they did under NRA, that administration of a labor law is infinitely more effective when organized workers help police an industry."

Miss Mason, a member of an old and famous Virginia family, was educated in private schools, and then became a stenographer for a law firm in Richmond, Va.

"My parents were intensely interested in relief of the distressed, and so I became interested in the down and out, realizing as a young woman that the only way workers could protect themselves is through organization," she said.

"So when I was in my 20's, I joined a union labor league, aimed at getting consumers to buy union-made goods. Through this I became acquainted with many labor leaders."

Headed Vote League.

Miss Mason said she began to work for labor legislation aimed at shorter hours, child labor, etc., when she became industrial secretary of the Richmond Y. W. C. A.

She also served as president of the Richmond League of Women Voters, and as chairman of the organization's state committee on women in industry.

In 1932 she became general secretary of the Richmond Y. W. C. A. and during that period was an organizer of the Richmond community fund. She also served several years on the Richmond council of social agencies.

During the World War she served as Virginia chairman for women in industry on the National

LUCY RANDOLPH MASON.

Labor Advisory Council. In 1931 she came to Atlanta when a group of southern women organized a council on women in industry, working here in the interest of shorter hours.

Consumers' League.

In 1932 Miss Mason served as general secretary of the National Consumers' League, which "expressed the consumer's concern for good working conditions and manufactured products," remaining in that capacity until July, 1937.

Associates with her in this work included Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Newton D. Baker, John G. Winant, former Governor of New Hampshire, and Josephine Roche.

She has been connected with the Textile Workers Organizing Committee since last July.

Miss Mason was born in Fairfax, Va. Her father, a second cousin of Robert E. Lee, was the Rev. Landon Randolph Mason, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Richmond. Her mother was Lucy Ambler, daughter of the Rev. John Carey Ambler, of Fauquier county, Virginia. Her great-great-grandfather was George Mason, author of the Virginia bill of rights.

She said she will spend the week end in Alexandria, Va., with her sister, Mrs. Taylor Burke, prior to the conference Tuesday.

TALMADGE TO MAKE 2 SPEECHES MONDAY

Former Governor Will Deliver Addresses at Dublin, Union Point.

Four speeches will provide the political fireworks for former Governor Talmadge, candidate for the United States senate, on July 4.

Talmadge will not make all four addresses himself, but will be represented in two by his son, Herman Talmadge, 25, who is quest the assistance of southerners well known for their interest in the south and familiarity with its problems.

"The outcome of the undertaking may indicate the advisability of similar studies with reference to other sections of the country."

Southerners Invited.

Those invited to attend the meeting here Tuesday are:

Major Thomas Allen, Memphis water and light division, Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. B. F. Ashe, president, University of Miami, Miami, Fla.; Governor Bailey; W. B. Bizzell, president, State University, Norman, Oklahoma.

L. O. Crosby, lumberman, Picayune, Miss.; Judge Blanton Fortson, Athens, Ga.; Frank Graham, president, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.; James H. Hammond, lawyer, past president Chamber of Commerce, Columbia, South Carolina.

WHITFIELD'S FIRST BLOOMS.

DALTON, Ga., July 1.—The first open cotton blooms from the 1938 crop were brought to Dalton this week by Sam Sane, Whitfield county farmer of the Crow Valley section, and Levi Brandon, Murray county negro farmer, who lives near Spring Place. The first bloom from the 1937 crop was reported on June 30 last year.

Engineers said the State Highway Department will begin immediately construction of a $115,000 viaduct over the railroad tracks on Magnolia street when the city purchases the rights of way.

Money for the two projects was anticipated from interest accounts and new liquor license receipts which were collected yesterday when City Clerk Joe Richardson issued 19 additional licenses, bringing the total in the city to 135.

The finance committee also recommended setting up $3,280 for the establishment of a branch library at the Samuel Inman school.

Councilman Frank Wilson said the branch would serve Boys' High and Tech High schools, as well as residents of the Sixth Ward.

$9,000,000 GIVEN TO CLEAR SLUMS

Labor and Civic Leaders Hail Allocation to Atlanta Authority.

ing of the $9,000,000 here in Atlanta will be a wonderful thing for the laboring men. Unemployment is widespread, but if the Atlanta projects are started off quickly and construction is speeded up, they will absorb much, if not all, of the building trades unemployment which private business cannot take care of now," he said.

Allocation of the millions to Atlanta comes at a time when building is far off its 1937 level and when hundreds of workers are idle because building has lagged so much for the first six months of this year.

Building permits issued through June of 1938 were $547,713 under the amount issued for the first six months of 1937, C. J. Bowen, city building inspector, said yesterday.

Comparative Figures.

The total for the six months in 1937 was $2,401,255, as compared with $1,853,542 through June of this year.

Permits for June, 1938, amounted to $342,208, however, as compared with $311,174 for May, indicating an upswing.

"Most of the building that has been going on this year has been small jobs and residences which do not use any of the building trades craftsmen," Johnson said.

"That's why the big slum-clearance project is so important to building tradesmen now."

Announced by Hamilton.

State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, chairman of the State Housing Authority, announced the allocation after receipt of information from Washington.

"We believe we are very fortunate in obtaining such a large allocation for Atlanta," Hamilton said.

"It now behoves the city to get busy and take advantage of what it has available. We obtained the $9,000,000 allocation despite the fact that $350,000 of the first $500,000 was earmarked before we had housing authority set up."

Hamilton said the allocation to Atlanta brought the state's total to $16,860,000.

"Previously we have obtained $2,700,000 for Savannah, $1,300,000 for Augusta, $850,000 for Columbus, $540,000 for Rome and $270,000 for Athens," the treasurer said.

Hamilton added that the total cost to the Housing Authority headed by him is $1,100.

No Salaries Paid.

"I serve as chairman in addition to my other duties, and I receive no salary," Hamilton said.

"In fact no one receives a salary from the Housing Authority. All we have spent was for actual traveling expenses."

Chairman Palmer hailed the announcement as "especially gratifying." Other members of the authority were equally enthusiastic.

Mayor Hartsfield said he was "immensely pleased" with the allocation, and added he is hopeful for an early start on the projects.

The mayor said he was informed of the allocation in a telegram from Senator Walter F. George.

Palmer pointed out that the allocation is conditioned upon Atlanta's making prompt use of the fund.

Must Act at Once.

"If the city does not act to use this money it will be withdrawn," the city chairman warned. "There are other cities anxious to get it."

Palmer added that the "Atlanta housing authority will make every effort to justify this allocation of funds and to obtain other allocations as they are needed."

"Immediate and aggressive work is needed," he added. "The housing authority will do its part."

Palmer cited the fact that building permits in Atlanta have averaged only $3,000,000 a year in the past several years.

Aid Business Generally.

"It can be seen that $9,000,000 for slum clearance and low-rent housing will be of inestimable help to put idle men to work and to aid business generally," he pointed out. "This will be in addition to the great good which will come to families now living under insanitary conditions."

The $9,000,000 allocation was the third largest announced during the day by the United States Housing Authority which earmarked a total of $68,925,000 during the day.

The fashionable wedding was over. The bride and groom made a rush for their motor car to escape the rice and the ragging of their friends and were speeding away on their honeymoon. The ladies of the company followed in their wake, waving handkerchiefs and express congratulations over the beautiful ceremony, the loveliness of the bride and the brilliant future that awaits the newly-weds.

Her Body Is Identified

FRANCES LITTLE.

BODY IS IDENTIFIED IN NURSE MYSTERY

Clothing in Los Angeles Determined to Be That of Atlanta.

The body of a woman found in a Los Angeles hotel room nearly a month ago has been positively identified as that of Miss Frances Little, trained nurse, of Atlanta, who disappeared mysteriously from her Clifton road home in April, it was learned yesterday.

Los Angeles authorities said death was caused by a hemorrhage. The body was discovered two days after Miss Little had registered under the name of Maude Adams, of Reton, N. M. The body has since been cremated.

Identification was made by means of a sample of cloth known to have been in Miss Little's possession when she disappeared.

Most of the clothing found in the room also has been identified by intimate friends, officials reported here.

Miss Little was last seen here when she visited a friend in the Georgia Baptist hospital on April 28. Later it was reported she was a passenger on a north-bound bus.

Nothing further was heard about her until a notice was received from the Los Angeles police department asking for help in identifying the body.

Police Chief Hornsby said yesterday he would continue his investigation of the case in an effort to find out why Miss Little left Atlanta, and if she was traveling alone. The ashes are now en route to her former home at Smart, Ga., for burial.

Hornbys added that the body was found in a room in the Salvation Army citadel, 54 Ellis street, N. E., Ernest I. Pugmire, southern territorial commander, announced yesterday.

A DISTURBING ELEMENT

In an article appearing in The American Pressman, George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, reproduces the report of the committee on government competition with private enterprise, as adopted by the council for industrial progress on March 12, 1936.

The findings of that committee are so sane, so intelligently summarized and so applicable to the situation on the same subject as it exists today, that President Berry serves good purpose in again drawing it to public attention.

The expansion of government function into fields of private competitive enterprise has been, the committee states, "a disturbing element in the nation's business." Pointing out that the proper function of government is to protect and promote the economic activities of its citizens, not to supplant them, the committee draws attention to the inevitable result, to government itself, of expanding its competition with private enterprise. This can be nothing less than a rapid increase in government expenditures with a corresponding decrease in revenue. With private enterprise forced out of business by its own government, that enterprise, naturally, can no longer pay its share of taxes.

There are only four conditions under which government activity in business or industry is justifiable, the report states. The first is for purpose of national defense. The second for conservation of natural resources. The third when private enterprise fails to conduct needed scientific research and exploratory activities to advance industrial development or in the interest of public health and safety, and the fourth when private enterprise fails to render a service necessary for the general welfare.

It is but natural that capital should be hesitant about investing in private industry when it is faced with the constant fear the government itself may assume the role of competitor to that industry. This is one of the principal causes behind the most recent recession. It has kept vast amounts of capital idle which otherwise would have been at work, providing jobs and creating new wealth for all the people.

"A revival of private industry," says the report, "will permit the return of labor to its normal occupations, will hasten the return to American standards of efficiency and maintain the dignity of labor which has made the American working man the nation's greatest single influence for the advancement of democratic ideals."

Private enterprise, motivated by the desire for profit, is essential to democracy as it is conceived in the United States. Whatever is done to replace this force for advancement by bureaucratic government control, or direction, is but a drawing away from democracy and a turning toward the socialized state, with government operation of all activities.

It leads to a rapidly expanding national debt, without prospect of meeting it. Which, in turn, means one of two courses, equally disastrous. First, capital levy and, second, repudiation or inflation, which are intrinsically the same.

As President Berry points out, the report of this committee was approved by both the united organized labor movement in America and by managerial representatives of 52 per cent, measured by employment, of industry in the United States.

It was presented to President Roosevelt more than two years ago. If President Berry, by again drawing attention to its recommendations, can rescue the report from the dust of a forgotten pigeonhole, he will have performed important service for the nation.

CROP CONTROL (?)

Ask a south Georgia agricultural agent about crop control today and the chances are he'll laugh. Although crop restrictions have been imposed this year, warehouse facilities through the tobacco belt are being improved to handle a larger harvest than that of 1937.

Reduced acreages for regular growers brought other farmers into the field, while improved farming methods and better conditions brought an increase in the yield per acre. One agent estimated the yield at 125 per cent of normal.

Next year, of course, the story may be different. The ultimate effect of the control measures cannot be judged by one year. The experience of this year may be repeated, in which case it will become necessary to re-examine the structure. Should the aims of the control law then be accomplished, however, it may be expected that, with refinements, it will remain a vital part of the agricultural economy of the nation.

WHEN THE U. S. GOES TO WAR

Should the United States enter upon another war, conditions in the nation will be totally different from what they were during the last conflict, unless Congress sees fit to make changes in the plans now proposed. Those who complained of being too closely supervised in their affairs last time would, under these plans, be denied the right even to complain. Plans on file in the War Department in Washington, amply supported by the national defense act, would suspend the nation's peacetime freedom of speech and action, at a stroke of the Presidential pen.

"Every person and every enterprise," explains Gordon Carroll, in the current number of the American Mercury, "will automatically become part of a gigantic war machine, the control of which will rest in the hands of the President alone." As a basis for his article Carroll has, of course, utilized the 75-page pamphlet issued by the superintendent of documents at Washington. The pamphlet, known as the industrial mobilization plan, contains administrative machinery for putting the national defense act into effect upon declaration of war. Aply enough, and in line with present custom, the plan is known alphabetically as the IMP.

"The IMP, the backbone of the totalitarian war-state, is already functioning in a preliminary manner," says Carroll. The nation has been divided into geographical "procurement" districts, better to enable seizure of all needed property when the time comes. Control of the press, radio, movies and other means of communicating information, including freedom of individual speech, will be rigidly enforced by a public relations administrator. And the IMP, according to Carroll, will put the American workingman in a straitjacket. There will be no question of employer vs. employee; no hint of labor's rights or preferences; no discussions of open or closed shops, of CIO or AFL. The government simply takes over. Nothing left to chance, nothing to the imagination. Just one, big, goose-stepping family.

Another angle of control is hidden behind the phrase "taking the profit out of war." One bill, already reported favorably by the house military affairs committee, provides for fixing all wages and prices. Another bill, written by the Treasury Department, would take the profit out of war by confiscatory taxation. It would abolish, overnight, the system of private enterprise by abolishing the incentive to earn a profit. Another bill would limit the earnings of individuals to $10,000 per annum, less taxes, of course. Politically appointed administrators, at $10,000 per year, would enforce the law. This is the same salary paid senators and congressmen. The politicians would thus become the highest paid individuals in the United States—in time of war.

While this gloomy picture of the nation at war is disconcerting to thinking Americans, it should be remembered that Congress enacted the national defense act and Congress can repeal or amend it. The other proposed laws are still bills. They are so absurd, they will, in all probability, remain just bills designed to draw attention to some particular politician's pet theories. The people are becoming more and more alive to the extreme danger of enacting laws far in advance, in moments of hysteria, to meet possible future national contingencies, largely unknown.

SIGNIFICANT FLIGHT

Russian newspapers recently reported the non-stop flight of a bombing-type airplane over the more than 4,000-mile route from Moscow to Vladivostok. An unprinted footnote might have read: "Tokyo and Berlin papers please note."

The round-trip flight from Vladivostok to Tokyo is about 1,500 miles, one-third of the distance of this non-stop flight. A round trip flight of 3,100 is the equivalent of an aerial expedition to Munich and return, from Moscow.

Two lessons may be noted in the flight. It demonstrated the ease with which Soviet planes could fly over foreign cities in time of war, as well as the possibility of maintaining contact with the Far East should the railroad lines now in operation be severed by enemy operations.

In Germany a woodworker has manufactured for himself two artificial legs and an artificial arm. It is as far as they have gone with an Ersatz German.

Sports: For some staggering sum, the New York Giants have acquired Seeds from Newark. And we remember when Congress mailed them to you, free.

For the benefit of those who came in late this is still the final victory drive, in Spain.

Editorial of the Day

THE SORROW OF SPAIN
(From the Columbia State)

For months the Spanish conflict has seemingly approached its end. It runs true to Spanish form to determine the outcome quickly until "the last man dies." Had a spirit of tolerance equal to their courage been that of these people, not only would an infinite sum of human misery have been averted, but the country would have escaped the impoverishment and stigma which will be hers for centuries to come.

What other sorrows she may have averted! The reproach of an alien conqueror! The paying of a personal and moral price that will irreparably damage the prestige of a brave people. Will the victors, the "bornes from within," be able to satisfy the demands of their allies? What will Mussolini demand? What Hitler? Will France be able to satisfy their greed?

The Bourbon-Hapsburg regime may return, and Spain again boast a king. Or Franco may proclaim himself dictator. What may eventuate is anybody's guess if he is not guessing any happiness for the Spanish people. These people have a hard road to travel. Undoubtedly they will be fascisticized. Handcuffed to the machine of Mars and taught to face the consequences of using force, rather than justice, in dealing with other people.

The sorrows of Spain and, incidentally, of the world, derive from the Machiavelli spirit, the savage doctrine that delights in brutal and shameful butcheries. Were the disasters resulting from failure to follow the principles of the Master-Teacher pictured, no more thrilling story could be thrown upon the silver screen of Time than the sorrows of this nation which once was as rapacious and as extensive in empire as was Rome.

Next year, of course, the story may be dif-

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ANTI-MONOPOLY PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The general prediction is that the anti-monopoly investigation will be dedicated to trying capitalists in their own fat. In the opinion of many, this is the favorite parlor game of the New Deal.

As the beginning of the inquiry is virtually at hand, however, it is well to lay aside preconceptions and try to make a guess at what it really will be like. The guessing is worth it, for at least the inquiry can do is to make a vast number of headlines in the next year or so, and the not impossible most is to remake the whole American economic system.

That the origin of the inquiry was in part political is admitted even by its inventors. It was, in fact, devised as an alternative, when the President listened to Donald Richberg, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and other moderates, and turned a deaf ear to the advisers who would have had him begin the new year by making a pulp of the "sixty families." And the crusade against the "sixty families" and monopoly in general was first devised as a way to lay the blame for the depression anywhere but on the New Deal's door step.

But the White House advisers who devised the inquiry are also sincere believers in Justice Brandeis' theory of the curse of bigness. And, being intellectuals, they have a deep respect for facts. The political need for the anti-monopoly inquiry has grown less acute. Consequently the leading New Dealers' willingness to make it an impartial and fact-finding investigation has increased. Even in private, when they forget the necessary hypocrisies of politics, the men behind the inquiry are now talking of "British royal commissions" and the like.

NO FRIER OF ANY ONE As yet, of course, the only real test of the probable quality of the personalities involved. These augur favorably. The inquiry committee's congressional members, headed by Senator O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, are moderate and pretty sensible. One or two of them, like Senator King, of Utah, are hard-shelled, hair-splitting tories. As for the contingent from the executive branch—the New Dealers described here earlier this week—they are intelligent, somewhat temperamental, but reasonably disinterested and serious men.

And now comes word of the appointment of the committee's first special investigator, Thomas C. Blaisdell Jr., who will be director of the Securities and Exchange Commission's division of the study. Blaisdell has summed himself up neatly:

"I'm a political muggump, an ex-minionary, and a friend of Rex Tugwell's, and I'm not ashamed of any of them."

Although the committee members give the direction, the special investigators hew the wood and draw the water, and Blaisdell will be charged with the most important of the special investigators' tasks—examining the uses to which the insurance companies put their huge reservoirs of capital, and inquiring into the concentration of general economic power. He has prepared for his job in 42 years of hard, varied and not too conspicuous work, including labor at Columbia University, teaching for the Presbyterians in China and for the Y. M. C. A. in India, and ending in minor employments in the New Deal. The important point about Blaisdell is that he is not, temperamentally, a frier of anyone in his own fat.

DIFFERENT DEFINITIONS Indeed, he approaches his new task with no preconceptions, even as to the essential wickedness of monopoly itself. The original inventors of the anti-monopoly inquiry are all deep-dyed haters of bigness, but Blaisdell is inclined to doubt the true religion. He has discussed the problem at unquotable length. But in SEC Commissioner Jerome N. Frank's new book, "Save America First," he is well summarized as believing as follows:

"It is not a self-evident proposition, nor has it been proved, that the competitive struggle is always good for those who participate in it, or that its effect on the bulk of the population is invariably praiseworthy."

One might almost say that Blaisdell begins with a predisposition in favor of big business, so long as it is subjected to be sure, to appropriate regulations. And there, of course, is where the trouble is going to come. Predisposition or no predisposition, Blaisdell has nine chances in ten of being denounced as monstrously unfair by the united voice of all conservatives. The answer is that definitions of unfairness vary, and however the anti-monopoly inquiry is carried on, one side will call it a calm and factual investigation, while the other will describe it as a cruel, perverted and political torture chamber.

As for the plain people who will look on, they must hope that the inquiry at least will produce some reliable data to form opinions on.

Eating,

And Time.

It must be better for man's digestion if he has a companion with whom to talk during a meal. For time spent together is so much happier than minutes spent alone. And the American habit of eating in too great a hurry must spring from the loneliness of food consumed from a lunch counter stool without another to chat with between courses.

The other evening, it became necessary that dinner be eaten in town, one of the better restaurants of Atlanta was chosen. The meal was quickly ordered and your column conductor, alone, waited. The cocktail came quickly and was consumed. Then the long, long wait for the main course. Twenty minutes at least. Maybe necessary to properly cook the fish ordered, but I was tempted to send word to the kitchen that, if they hadn't yet caught it, to give me something else.

Finally, by skipping dessert, managed to get away in time to make an important engagement not more than three minutes late.

All told, the time spent in that restaurant was a little more than 40 minutes. It seemed ages and I got frightfully impatient and irritated.

Yet 40 minutes should not be too long for dinner. With a companion it probably would have seemed short. And surely it is much better for digestion and health to eat slowly. That is why I say much of America's indiscretions must owe its origin to men who, perforce, sit in solitary boredom at a restaurant table all to themselves.

$9,000,000 For At least $9,000,000 is coming to Atlanta for use in slum clearance and housing.

That is important for a number of reasons. In the first place $9,000,000 spent in any one city is sure to bring on just that much prosperity because most of it will find its way into the cash registers of the grocers, the clothiers and the various tradesmen. There will be work and there will be wages and Atlanta will receive a financial impetus.

That will be the immediate reaction. It is possible, of course, that this is the first slice of the housing money. It is not improbable another $3,000,000 will be added to the first sum.

RETIRING JURORS ASK CONTINUATION OF GRAFT INQUIRY

Expense of May-June Term
Is $1,923, According to County Treasurer.

Continuation of the law enforcement graft investigation was urged by the Fulton county grand jury yesterday as the May-June body, which conducted three special probes during its term, read its final presentations in open court and was discharged.

Earlier in the day, jurors issued a brief statement stating no evidence had been presented them justifying "any action being taken" against Mrs. Myrtle Guyol in connection with the slaying of her husband, Eddie Guyol, former lottery chief.

Jury Foreman B. L. Bugg said there would be no other official comment on the investigation into the Guyol slaying from the jury since jurors agreed any statements released would be written and signed by the foreman and secretary.

The recommendation that the incoming grand jury—to be sworn in Tuesday—take up the "investigation of conduct of city and county officers with respect to enforcement of prohibition and anti-lottery laws" was voiced in presence.

Superior Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, discharging the jury, said he would inform the new body of the request.

The law enforcement graft investigation—in progress for four months—was marked by indictment of 11 city policemen and six former deputy sheriffs on bribery charges.

Liquor Retail Probe.

The retiring jury also conducted a probe into methods of liquor retailers in obtaining licenses. The two-month term was climaxized by a third investigation in the slaying of Guyol after Attorney Russell Turner, counsel for Ode V. Fluker, had accused Mrs. Guyol of the murder of her husband in April, 1935.

Establishment of a pension system for county police was recommended in the final presentations, which voiced praise for the solicitor general's office.

As the jury prepared to go into its room for the last session, jurors took time out to present Solicitor John A. Boykin with a new request.

The Guyol statement was released in explanation of a "no" bill voted Thursday on the technical charge of murder placed against Mrs. Guyol as the jury took up the inquiry Tuesday.

Jury's Statement.

Expense of the jury, which held 31 sessions, was $1,923, Mrs. Mabel McNeil, county treasurer, said. The jury's statement regarding the "no" bill follows:

"We have considered all evidence submitted in the case of the state against Mrs. Eddie Guyol, and also certain affidavits. We permitted Captain B. W. Seabrook and Mr. Russell G. Turner to appear before the grand jury and make statements. We considered certain affidavits, the statements made by Captain Seabrook and Mr. Turner, and all evidence which was submitted.

"After reviewing all evidence submitted, including the affidavits, we find that there was no evidence submitted that would justify any action being taken against Mrs. Guyol on the indictment, which was drawn. Hence, the no bill which has been returned.

"This statement is made because of the fact that the case has received wide publicity, and we desire that the public and anyone interested may be informed of the facts concerning the action taken by the grand jury."

FOUR SHIFTS ARE MADE IN POLICE DEPARTMENT

Four changes in assignments were announced yesterday by Police Chief Hornsby.

They were: Detective H. R. McCurley to uniform duty on the morning watch; Radio Patrolman H. A. Beatty to plainclothes duty; Patrolman T. O. Sturdivant Jr. to morning watch as telephone operator, and Patrolman R. E. Williams to night watch as telephone operator.

Speedster Nears Completion for Derby Races Here

"She's almost ready for the speedway," observes Billy Waldrop, of 786 Cooper street, as he puts the finishing touches on the body of the miniature car he will drive in the Constitution's fifth annual Soap Box Derby. The finals are to be July 23 at Soap Box Derby Downs on Northside drive. Billy will compete with hundreds of other boys in Georgia for fame and many coveted prizes.

ONLY 22 DAYS LEFT FOR DERBY RACERS

Zone Finals Start July 14
With Tests at Carrollton.

The first day of July found many entrants in the Constitution's fifth annual Soap Box Derby admiring their sleek, speedy cars yesterday, while others worked feverishly to complete theirs in the next few days.

Only 22 more days are left until the finals of the big derby that will turn the spotlight on hundreds of boys throughout the state. The finals are scheduled for July 23 at Soap Box Derby Downs on Northside drive.

There was even less time for those participating in the zone finals. The first zone race will be held at Carrollton, July 14. Others are set for Thomaston, July 15; Monroe, July 15; Marietta, July 20, and Gainesville, July 22. To each of the finalists in these races will go a $55 bicycle from The Constitution.

National Race.

The winner of the north Georgia championship in Atlanta will have an opportunity to gain nationwide fame, for he will represent this section at the National Soap Box Derby to be held in Akron, Ohio, August 14.

The many handsome prizes being offered in the derby held out an additional lure. For instance, the winner of the north Georgia championship will get a miniature motor-driven racer given by Rich's department store, which its owner said he would a regular automobile.

Young craftsmen are especially interested in the complete power workshop which goes to the Atlanta champion. It is given by Atlanta Chevrolet dealers who are sponsoring the Derby with The Constitution.

Other Prizes.

Other prizes include a second miniature motor-driven racer for the best built car in the race, given by the NuGrape Bottling Company; a cabinet DeLo radio as the second prize in the Atlanta race, given by United Motors Service, Inc.; sweepstakes by Mike Benton, Ralph Hankeison, and Bill Breitenstein, racing luminaries; a 17-jewel Bulova wrist watch, given by E. A. Morgan Jewelry Company; a complete moving picture camera and projection outfit, by the Diamond Jewelry Company; a new bicycle as second prize in the Atlanta Derby by Pig 'n' Whistle; 50 dusters for the Atlanta finalists by The Constitution.

The second largest project went jointly to Sam E. Finley, of Atlanta, and Gibson-Robinson Company, of Decatur. It is for the paving of 11 miles of Decatur and Miller counties and construction of a bridge along the route. The low bid was $174,160.

Other projects and the successful contractors follow:

Franklin and Hart Counties—$487 miles of surface treatment on the Toccoa-Elbert road; Sauer Construction Company, $69,560.

Glynn County—7,010 miles of roadside improvement on the Jonesboro road; Jonesboro Construction Company and F. H. McGowan, Inc., both of Brunswick, $44,027.

Troup County—$77,000 asphalt paving and 0.189 mile of concrete paving on the Vidalia-Dublin road, E. Jack Smith, Atlanta.

Wilkes County—$494 miles of surface treatment and widening of one bridge and four culverts on the Washington-Lincolnton road; Beckham-Lawler Construction Company, Perry, Ga., $128,945.

LOUIS ARMSTRONG PLAYS TOMORROW

Or To Be More, Technical, at 12:01 A. M. Monday.

A record crowd is expected for Louis Armstrong's "swing session" at the City auditorium which will get under way at 12:01 o'clock Monday morning. A special section has been reserved for white persons.

Armstrong, who is known as "Satchelmouth" and also as the world's greatest trumpet player, has recently completed a month's engagement at the Paramount theater, New York, where he helped to set new attendance marks.

Internationally known for his work in films and on the radio, Armstrong has the distinction of having played 12 command performances for the king of England.

His latest movie appearances were in "Doctor Rhythm," "Pennies from Heaven" and "Everyday's Holiday." The same orchestra which he used in the films will be with him for his Atlanta appearance.

HAPEVILLE POST OFFICE RECEIPTS INCREASE

Receipts in the small Hapeville post office increased 30 per cent for the second quarter—April 1 through June 30—over the same period last year, Postmaster W. R. Conine reported yesterday.

The contrasting totals were: 1938, $2,345.16; 1937, $1,764.40. Conine attributed the increase to several new companies having been established in Hapeville, and that more Hapeville residents are using the post office there instead of mailing letters in Atlanta.

Pistol Fired Foot From Gray's Body

Police Tests Show No Traces of Powder Burns on Coat.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 1.—(P)—The pistol bullet which killed King D. Gray, 52, film cameraman, was fired at least a foot from his body, since his coat showed no traces of powder burns, Ray Pinker, police chemist, reported today. "If it proves to be a murder," said Detective Captain J. J. Jones, "I believe we will find jealousy was the cause."

Further evidence that Gray was slain was given by the fact that a .32-caliber pistol shell but no weapon was found when his body was discovered slumped over the steering wheel of his automobile in front of the post office here yesterday. Three buttons had been torn from his shirt.

(Gray's brother, Charles T. Gray, lives in Perry, Ga.)

An autopsy indicated King Gray must have lived for some time after he was shot. The bullet entered his right chest and lodged near the left shoulder blade.

Gray held in his hands a letter from Newcastle, Pa., signed "Babe" and beginning "Dear Daddy."

"Received your Friday letter a Hollywood store. She is now yesterday," it said in part. "Still no word from my trunk. . . . If you can, sweetheart, I wish you would check on it."

"What are you doing on the Fourth, Daddy? Nothing at all here. Still praying to be with you soon."

"With love always."

Dispatches from Newcastle said Chief of Police Criswell had questioned Frances Bleakley at the request of Hollywood police and she said she was a friend of Gray's. Miss Bleakley had been employed recently in the art department of year-old King D. Gray whose slaying had Hollywood, Cal., police mystified, today said he could offer no help in the case.

GEORGE'S RETURN TO MARK START OF WARM BATTLE

Will Open Campaign at Vienna Monday; Others Plan Speeches.

Senator Walter F. George's return to the battleground in prelude to Monday's speaking barrage will enliven Georgia's political front today.

The senior senator, who has yet to reply to his three rivals, returned from Washington by way of Augusta. He planned to address the Augusta branch of the National Letter Carriers' Association today or tomorrow, but indicated he would not touch on politics, holding his fire for July 4 at Vienna.

Robert F. Wood, Athens salesman campaigning on an anti-Rivers-New Deal platform, will have the gubernatorial trenches to himself today in a speech at Ellijay, in north Georgia's Gilmer county.

Opponents to Speak.

District Attorney Lawrence Camp was to wheel his pro-New Deal artillery into action today at Basley, in southeast Georgia, while former Governor Eugene Talmadge was ready to unlimber his senatorial guns at Tallapoosa, over by the Alabama line.

Monday will find all eight senatorial and gubernatorial contestants out among the folks at holiday celebrations and all but George E. D. Rivers will be bidding directly for votes. Rivers stuck to his plan to withhold political fire until late this month, although he planned to attend a Houston barbecue.

The noisy Fourth's heaviest broadsides were to come from Vienna and Dublin in south-central Georgia and from Warrenton in the east-central portion of the state.

Hometown Stage.

Senator George had his hometown stage at Vienna to himself in an opening speech expected to clarify his position on President Roosevelt's policies. The senator has opposed some administration measures; supported others, and Camp and William G. McRae, Atlanta lawyer, both have sought to picture him as a bitter foe of the President.

Dublin rallied the largest single-day lineup of rostrum talent on view so far in the campaign. Camp, McRae and Talmadge all were to present their senatorial bids, and Wood and John J. Mangham, of Bremen, were to uphold their sides of the gubernatorial debate.

Hugh Howell, Atlanta attorney and fourth man in the governor's race, was to be honor guest as well as No. 1 speaker in a homecoming jamboree at Warrenton, seat of Howell's native Warren county. The former Talmadge lieutenant indicated this would be the major addresses of his campaign so far.

South Georgia Talks.

Camp and Talmadge both planned to extend their campaign lines in south Georgia with additional speeches Monday after the Dublin volleying, the former being slated to talk at Cuthbert and Adel while Talmadge was to carry his message to Union Point. Herman Talmadge, the former Governor's son and campaign manager, was to speak at Cuthbert.

Wood was the only gubernatorial aspirant to double up on the fourth, planning to speak at Watson Springs in Greene county as well as at Dublin.

Wood, pitching his campaign on strong opposition to high taxes, and McCrae, who favors the Townsend old-age pension plan, both planned to carry their drives into the farming and rural areas via sound trucks.

Wood was slated to leave next week for an intensive drive and McCrae planned to take the road about July 15 in an offensive to include two or three speeches "in every two-unit-vote county" in the state between them and the primary September 14.

GEORGE LEAVES FOR VIENNA HOME

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)— Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, left for Georgia tonight to open his renomination campaign.

His first stop will be at Augusta, where he was to address the State Association of Letter Carriers tomorrow night.

The formal opening of his campaign will be at Vienna, his home town, where he will speak to an Independence Day gathering Monday.

The Georgia senator, facing a three-man opposition, said he would not return to the capital before the September primary. He already has opened campaign headquarters at Atlanta.

He remained in Washington after adjournment of Congress, he said, "to wind up a great many matters which were pending."

He reported the Surplus Commodities Corporation had promised to make enough purchases in Georgia and other southern states to prevent declines in the peach

Hero Medal Sought for Atlanta Lad For Daring Rescue in Canoe Upset

Howard Haire Jr. Saves Companion, Swimming With Clothes On.

A Carnegie hero medal will be sought for Howard Haire Jr., 19-year-old Atlantan, for his rescue of a lifelong friend, Alex Johnson, 19, from a private lake near Marietta last Sunday, it was disclosed yesterday.

Haire and Johnson were riding in a canoe. It overturned and the two swam for shore with their clothes on—a distance of some 50 yards.

When Haire reached the bank he was told Johnson had gone under after swimming about 20 yards. Without taking time to untie his wet shoes, young Haire jumped into the water and swam back to the place where his friend had gone down for the last time. Diving to the bottom of the lake he brought the unconscious boy to the top and swam back to shore.

After witnesses had made repeated attempts to revive the youth, Haire, who weighs 195 pounds, picked up his 185-pound friend and threw him over his shoulder in the manner used by firemen. Johnson then began to show signs of life for the first time.

Witnesses praised Haire's act of bravery, declaring he saved his friend's life single-handed. They said he maintained an unusual presence of mind throughout the rescue.

"At it was nothing more than anybody else would have done under the circumstances," Haire said with a shrug.

1,555,049 Have Seen Crackers Play Since Mann Became President

The Southern league moguls were sort of hoping Atlanta would get the first annual all-star game so they could be assured of getting off to a good start in the inaugural event.

I mean, of course, financial start.

The rest of the league always look to Atlanta whenever there is any question of real drawing power, and it is not difficult to understand when one glances at the attendance figures.

Since Earl Mann has been president of the club, or since opening day, 1935, through the last Nashville-Atlanta game of 1938, total paid attendance has been 1,173,633.

Actually during that golden period 1,555,049 people have seen the Crackers play. That includes ladies' night games and all passes.

Before the year is over total paid attendance at Ponce de Leon for Earl Mann's four years as president may easily total one million and a quarter people.

It hasn't, of course, come about by accident. Fans started flocking back to Ponce de Leon when they were assured of good baseball.

They have seen good baseball ever since Mann has been president. He has been the prey during two pennant winning seasons and a third-place finish. And the current Crackers, in spite of being crippled, are setting a hot pace.

It is a record that no other minor league executive can match.

Mann's ability has been recognized from time to time. He received the Sporting News' award a couple of seasons ago as the outstanding minor league executive.

Later he was named on the executive committee of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs.

They look to the 32-year-old Mann. He has come a long way in a relatively short time.

The fans have the utmost confidence in Earl Mann, who started out in the same park selling peanuts, tickets, etc.

Mann came up the hard way and learned the business thoroughly, step by step, as he advanced. And so today he is one of the finest executives in the game.

Paul Richards is a monument to his ability to judge talent.

PAUL PULLS THROUGH.

Richards, a polished receiver, made his work look so easy for a couple of seasons that the fans thought he didn't hustle. There just wasn't any lost motion, no heroics. He did a workmanlike job of catching without any flair for the spectacular.

Richards has changed a bit. But he does most of his spectacular stuff now on the coaching lines. He still catches in much the same smooth, polished manner.

There was some question in the fans' mind as to Richards' ability as a leader. But he undoubtedly is a great leader. He has the complete co-operation of his men and they play for him in a highly spirited manner.

They couldn't be where they are today if they did not have such spirit. Injuries and illness would have knocked them out of the box, so to speak.

Much of the Crackers' lack of success a year ago when they finished third was laid to the doorstep of hard luck, player injuries and so forth. And so on.

But the Crackers of 1937 did not have the misfortunes of the current club. In fact, no Cracker club since Earl Mann has been president has encountered such miserable ill luck with regard to players as has this team.

And yet it has shown a far greater spirit and will-to-win than any other club of the past three years. It simply must be put down to leadership and Earl Mann's ability to pick the right man.

He was open to criticism when he named Richards manager. He was, in a sense, on a spot. But things have worked out very well, thank you.

Richards has done remarkably well with the club and Mann's faith in him has been fully justified. Earl knew Paul when they were at Macon together and later in the Eastgate league.

Earl followed Richards' fortunes in all the other leagues in which he played. It was not guesswork, but sound business, which prompted him to make his choice.

Mann and the Crackers have scored again.

FANS NEED VOTE.

After studying the lineups of the American and National league all-star teams as selected by the managers one is forced to the conclusion that it was all a mistake to bar the fans from voting.

Among the many strange things the American leagues managers did was to leave Lynn (Line) Drive, Nelson off the pitching staff. He is considered one of the best pitchers in the league today, is the former Cracker.

But that was just one of many inexplicable moves. Lou Gehrig, having a bad year afieid and hitting about .30 points under .300, was the choice over Hal Trosky, Cleveland, who is batting around .350 and is a fielding sensation.

Joe DiMaggio, having a half time getting started and hitting under .300, made the team and a fellow like Joe Vosmik, whose hitting mark reaches above .320, is an also ran.

Pinky Higgins, with a fine batting average, got no play, while Buddy Lewis and Red Rolfe, each hitting poorly, were selected for third base.

Mike Kreevich and Bob Johnson, each with puny averages, got the call over players like Henry Steinbacher and Pete Fox. Apparently Lefty Gomez was named because the National leaguers never have beaten him in the all-star game. His current record certainly doesn't warrant him a place.

National league pilots also came up with some rather funny ones. They seemed to be going on the basis of last year's averages, too, when they ignored such hitting outfields as Chuck Klein, Enos Slaughter and Morris Arnovich. They picked Hank Leiber.

They didn't like Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, who is considered to be the top pitcher in the National league. Carl Hubbell and

DALE ALEXANDER IS SIGNED AGAIN BY CHATTANOOGA

Slugger Refused To Report to Dallas; Todt Has Leg Injury.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 1.—(P)—Big Dale Alexander, who said he was retiring from baseball last week when he refused to report to Dallas after being traded to that club by the Chattanooga Lookouts, signed new Lookout contract today.

Joe Engel, Chattanooga president, said Alexander would report to the club tomorrow in Memphis.

Alexander, handicapped by a foot injury, was traded to Dallas for First Baseman Phil Todt. Todt received a leg injury at Knoxville Wednesday and will probably be out for several weeks.

"I arranged with Dallas for Alexander's release today," Engel said. "I will have to do something for them later in the season. Big Alex has recovered from his foot injury and is badly needed to fill in at first base. When Todt returns, the best man will get the place."

Alexander has been at his Greenville, Tenn., farm since leaving the Chattanooga club.

Knoxville To Have Brothers on Team.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 1.—(P)—Daniel (Bud) Hafey, 26, outfielder and brother of the Smokies' third baseman, Tom Hafey, has been purchased by the Knoxville baseball club from the St. Louis Cardinals. Secretary Edgar Allen announced today.

Hafey, who has been with the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league this year, left by plane from San Francisco to join the Smokies in New Orleans.

Billy Gillespie, Buffington, Victors

RYE, N. Y., July 1.—Billy Gillespie, national interscholastic champion, and Donald Buffington, both of Atlanta, gained semi-final berths in the sixth annual eastern interscholastic invitation tennis tournament at the Manhasset Island Club here today.

JAPANESE RAIDERS BOMB 200 CHILDREN LEAVING CLASSES

400 Civilians Killed or Wounded as 100 Shells Rain on Home Districts.

HONGKONG, July 1.—(AP)—Chinese reported today that 400 civilians were killed or wounded in a Japanese raid on the south China port of Swatow.

Nine Japanese planes rained more than 100 bombs on the city, many falling in crowded residential sections.

Of the casualties, Chinese said 200 were school children who were leaving their classrooms as a school building was struck. Other buildings damaged included the municipal and a Red Cross headquarters.

Reports from Shanghai said a squadron of Chinese warplanes attacked Japanese troop positions and warships up the Yangtze river today in an attempt to hit the invaders' land and naval drive toward Hankow, Chinese provisional capital.

The attack centered near Matowchen, 175 miles below Hankow, where the Japanese have been hammering for days to break a formidable defense boom the Chinese have laid across the river.

The Chinese reported they damaged seriously one warship in the attack.

The best available reports were that Matowchen itself now is in the hands of the Japanese, although the Japanese ships apparently had not yet cracked the near-by boom.

Buildings in Swatow were destroyed on a large scale it was

Dick Powell Loses ---In Stork Derby

JONESBORO, Ark., July 1.—(P)—Luther Powell, of Jonesboro, younger brother of movie actor Dick Powell, of Hollywood, won the family "stork derby" by 26 minutes and a whole tier.

Luther became the father of a seven-pound, seven-ounce son, christened John Edward, at a Jonesboro hospital at 4 p.m. central standard time, yesterday.

Dick became the father of a daughter, to be christened Ellen, at a Hollywood hospital at 4:26 p.m., coast standard time, yesterday. The mother is Joan Blondell, also of movie fame.

Actual the difference in time zones makes John Edward two hours and 26 minutes older than his cousin, Ellen.

powerful explosives ploughed to earth from great heights.

The devastating attack began at 5 p.m. and lasted for an hour and a half. The population had some warning, for six of the planes have circled over the city for 30 minutes before the first bomb was loosed.

The objectives, according to eyewitnesses, appeared to be the mayor's office, military headquarters and the power station.

The attack, on a far greater scale than several previous bombings recently, caused panic as it continued through the 90 terrifying minutes. The populace ran in all directions as building after building was shattered.

The Chinese believed the raid to be the prelude to a large-scale Japanese invasion of south China. Foreign observers thought the Japanese would follow it with an attempt to establish a shore base for an overland drive toward Canton.

The United States gunboat Asheville has been standing by at Swatow for protection of Americans. Sixty-nine Americans have been reported in the Swatow consular district and 25 in Swatow itself.

PLAN TO CARVE CHINA DRAFTED

PEIPING, July 1.—(P)—An elaborate peace plan for ending the Chinese-Japanese war, under which China would be carved into at least five autonomous units, today was reported being drafted by Chinese members of the Peiping provincial government and their Japanese advisers.

The government officials and their advisers all are dominated by the Japanese army.

While the plan admittedly had little chance of early acceptance by the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, it was believed to be an important indication of the basis on which Japan would be glad to terminate the conflict, now less than a week from its first anniversary.

Informed persons who reported the plan said that, roughly, it called for continuation of the present status of Japanese occupation.

Bid to Europe.

As a bid for European acceptance of Japan's partial conquest of China, Japanese sources indicated European powers would be offered spheres of influence. The whole scheme therefore was said to resemble the plans of imperialists of 40 years ago, when the break-up of China appeared imminent.

The five autonomous Chinese states envisaged by the draft plan were said to be:

North China, under the present Peiping provisional government.

Inner Mongolia, under Tchao Wang, Japan's Mongol friend who heads the present Mongolian federation with the capital at Kwei-hua in Suiyuan province.

East China, under the Japanese-dominated Nanking "reformed government of China."

Central China, under the present Chinese government at Hankow.

South China, under a combination of Kwangtung-Kwangsi provincial leaders.

Recognize Chiang Kai-shek.

It was said Japan would recognize Chiang Kai-shek as head of the Hankow regime if he would accept the scheme. Probably he would resign to save his face and then return, it was said.

Domestic, the Japanese news agency, said that Italy and Germany would recognize the Peiping provisional government soon.

The draft plan was said to provide for the following spheres of influence:

Japan in North China and Inner Mongolia.

Germany in Shantung, where she had an economic foothold before the World War.

Britain in the lower Yangtze area, including Shanghai.

France in South China.

My informants said this plan had been "under serious consideration for some time" by Japanese and Chinese leaders here.

FRANCE SUSPENDS IMPORTS FROM JAPAN

PARIS, July 1.—(P)—France tonight suspended importation of Japanese quota merchandise, approximately 25 per cent of all Japanese goods purchased in France.

The sudden order, which commercial quarters said was "the most drastic of its kind ever taken against any country," was in retaliation for Tokyo's failure to live up to an agreement to import into Japan in 1938 as much or more French goods as two years ago.

These sources said the apparent reason for Japan's failure to keep her side of the bargain was that she lacked foreign exchange to finance imports because of heavy purchases of war materials.

We desire to express our appreciation of the cooperation and assistance that we have had in our work from the Solicitor General and his assistants. We have found them at all times fully cooperative and earnest in their efforts to arrive at the facts relating to all matters coming under our consideration. We commend the energy and efficiency of him, and his staff, in their efforts to enforce the laws of our state and to bring to punishment those guilty of their violation.

We recommend that this General Presentment be published in each of the following papers, viz: The Atlanta Constitution, The Atlanta Journal, The Georgian-American and the Fulton County Daily Report, and that they be paid the usual fees for such publication.

Woodring Terms Present Troubles 'Small' Compared to Those of '65

10,000 Hear Speeches of War Secretary, Veterans' Commanders.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1.—(P)—Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring today ranked "our present troubles" as "small" compared with those overcome by the armies in Blue and Gray who fought on this historical battlefield just 75 years ago.

"Inheriting from the initiative, the ingenuity and the courage so manifest throughout their useful lives," the secretary said, "we may rely on our ability and that of our descendants to go forward with America to new heights."

With him on the platform, protected by a spreading canopy from a light rain, were the 1,800 followers of both Meade and Lee who have returned to the scene where many of their comrades died.

Plead for Peace.

"May we be an example to all peoples of the earth, of love and tolerance," said Dr. Overton H. Mennet, 89, of Los Angeles, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. "Let us plead for mutual confidence and peace among men."

Mr. Roosevelt probably will land from his cruise some place close to the Georgia-South Carolina coast and plans a brief stop at his Warm Springs, Ga., cottage.

The cruise will take him to the Galapagos and Coco Solos islands, crossing the equator for a short distance. Returning, the Houston will go through the Panama canal to some Gulf of Mexico or Atlantic port.

Dines With Princess.

Roosevelt replied to an inquiry that he had no plans for July 4 except work. He will reach the White House the night of July 3 after a speech at Gettysburg, Pa., and between that time and the start of the western trip, he said, he would have four hard days' work, making appointments to federal jobs and winding up other business. The trip will keep him from Washington at least a month.

The President said he had signed or vetoed every bill passed by Congress in its closing days.

Then he drove off to the big Roosevelt family home, where his mother lives, to receive Crown Princess Louise of Sweden. She was his dinner guest tonight.

BANK IS ACCUSED OF AIDING F.D.R. SON

there wasn't anything there—no evidence of any political gain to the bank through the insurance.

Cronin based his case on a contention that the bank had employed him to obtain the insurance, that he spent several months making arrangements for it with the American Fore Group, an organization of insurance companies, and that, despite his work and arrangements, he had been "wrongfully deprived of $31,750 in commissions."

Spring argued, however, that both of the bank's vice presidents had gone to New York to request the American Fore Group to give the order to O'Brien, Russell.

Spring argued that an "oral" contract existed between the bank and Cronin, and that the former was guilty of a "breach of good faith" in letting another insurance agency handle the order after Cronin had done the work.

The bank's representative maintained, however, that no contract existed between Cronin and the institution, that he was only one of several requested to obtain the insurance and that "he bank had acted just as it would a person who asked a real estate dealer to buy or sell a house."

"Unless there is a finding that there was a contract," Dodge argued, "no matter how much work he put in, he is not entitled to recover."

At the time basis for the suit arose, James Roosevelt had not become secretary to his father, the President.

Miss Hardman Weds Mr. Hogg at Rites in Clarkesville, Ga.

CLARKESVILLE, Ga., July 1.—The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Hardman to Samuel Richard Hogg was solemnized recently at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Fielder Hardman, in Clarkesville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. H. Maxwell, pastor of the Cornelia Methodist church, in the presence of the immediate family, relatives and a few intimate friends.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. H. H. Elliott and Miss Virginia Cook, of Conyers. The ushers, Billie Hardman, brother of the bride, and Sam Arrendale, lighted the candles.

Miss Evelyn Hardman, only sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of cornflower blue silk net over taffeta, and carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli and sweet peas.

The bride entered with her father, Dr. T. F. Hardman, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Parker Meek, of Forsyth.

The bride was lovely in her robe of ivory chiffon and lace, made along princess lines with long, tight-fitting sleeves trimmed with lace and tiny covered buttons. The lace girdle ended in a long train of the lace and her finger-tip veil of tulle was held to her hair by sprays of valley lilies. She carried a bouquet of white roses, valley lilies and ferns.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception. Mrs. Woodrow Reeves and Miss Ellen Stark Rhodes served punch. Others assisting in entertaining were Mesdames H. W. Rhodes, J. R. Lee, J. S. Lunsford, Reynolds Meschine, J. R. Reeves and B. H. Russel.

Woman Against Woman

By MARGARET CULKIN BANNING

INSTALLMENT II.

In his anger, he had forgotten that he had promised to read Ellen a story. He caught his breath as she came running into the room. He had never broken his word to her before. He picked her up in his arms and held her tight, while he explained that her mother had made an engagement which had forgotten and he had barely time to dress.

"Oh," said Ellen, but there was gameness as well as disappointment in her voice, "do you think, Daddy, we can read tomorrow night?"

"It's a lead pipe cinch we will, darling," he said.

"I wonder what that means—a lead pipe cinch," she said.

"There's no need for you to know, dear. It's bad English."

"But Daddy, don't you think I'm old enough to use bad English, too?"

He smiled as she ran back to the nursery. Whatever else might be wrong with his life and his home, he had Ellen.

His breeding had many demands made on it that evening. He had meant it when he told Cynthia that he detested Morton and knew that despite his present prominence, he was a crook at heart, and that from this night on, he would have nothing to do with him socially. He had always refused to have any business dealings with him.

Cynthia had disarmed him by

AUNT HET

By ROBERT GUILLIN

"Poor Emmie's husband don't kiss her much. If he ain't had a drink he don't want to an' if he has his scared she'll smell him around. I'll phone tomorrow Mrs. Morton, and we can make all arrangements then."

Stephen said no more. It was useless and it was also humiliating. Nor did he speak as he drove home at reckless speed.

"I'm going right to bed," said Cynthia as they entered their living room. "Coming?"

"Sorry, again," he said firmly, "but it is impossible."

Of course the Mortons said the things people always say under such circumstances—he did look tired, he would work better after a little rest; there was no reason why he should not like some of his papers along, if necessary, and work on them at the lake.

"And now, folks, no more words from you please," said Cynthia gaily. " Didn't I accept? Did you ever know me to break an engagement?" Don't mind Steve, he gets this way when he is tired; loses his sense of values or whatever you want to call it. You just leave it to me. I can bring him around. I'll phone tomorrow Mrs. Morton, and we can make all arrangements then."

Stephen said no more. It was useless and it was also humiliating. Nor did he speak as he drove home at reckless speed.

"I'm going right to bed," said Cynthia as they entered their living room. "Coming?"

"You'd best—what was the use of my breaking up the party so early, if you aren't going to get some of the rest you need?"

He did not answer. She shrugged her shoulders.

"Well, if you want to sit here and talk, it's all right by me. I like you better when you are pleasant."

"How dare you talk to me as if I were some half-wit?"

"I'm simply trying to find out what's wrong with you!"

He looked at her in a way he had never looked before, before he spoke. When he did speak, it was in a low, controlled voice, more terrible than any evidence of anger could have been.

"You want to know what's wrong with me, Cynthia? You. You and nothing else."

"Well, I must say that's a pretty thing to say."

"I'm not trying to be pretty or polite or anything else but truthful."

"If you're referring to the Mortons—"

"It isn't the Mortons, Cynthia. Not altogether, that is. What happened tonight has just made me see everything as it is. Oh, I've seen things before—but I tried not to. I even lied to myself. I just wouldn't believe that you—the girl I had loved—could be what I know you are."

"This is becoming rather melodramatic, isn't it, dear? Accusing me of heaven only knows what just because I made a pleasant date? You certainly are losing all sense of values, Steve, when you can say such things to me. I should resent it, but I will not quarrel. I know that you are tired out and—"

"Drop that noble pose," he said. "You have done as you liked for so long—made me do as you liked—that you think this state of affairs will go on forever. It won't. I am looking at you, at our life, without blinkers now."

"What have you had, Steve—a vision?"

"Just that. A vision of my future—a complacent jackass, whose wife arranges his life, his pleasures, even his work. It may surprise you, but somehow, I don't see myself in that comic strip role any more."

"You're becoming more absurd with every word you say."

"You are wrong. I have been that and more. I am not now and I will not be ever again. From this moment, I manage my own life and you keep out of it. Do you understand?"

"Not altogether. I still don't know what my crimes are. And I don't see, exactly—pardon me if I am stupid—how it is possible for us to live together in this house fairly large though it is, without my being a little bit in your life. So, as I am more than a little bored with your conversation, I'll say goodnight and pleasant dreams and go to bed. You, of course, may do as you like. I wouldn't think of making any suggestions."

She walked toward the door. She stopped short and turned to him at the commanding note in his voice.

"Wait."

"More?" she asked, trying to be ironic, but there was fear in her voice. This was a Steve she had never seen before.

"You should know that we are not going on living together in this house, or any other."

She came toward him quickly and now her voice was low and controlled.

"Steve, have you gone mad? Do you know what you are saying to me?"

"I know," he said grimly. "Because you seem unusually slow in grasping things tonight, I'll put it in other words. I've spent my last night in this house. I'm going now. And I am never coming back."

With the sure instinct of a crafty woman, she used the one hold she had on him.

"What about Ellen?" she asked.

"She is your child and mine—nothing can alter that."

"Leave Ellen out of this," he said firmly. "That question will be settled later. Right now I want to get out of here—before I break down and apologize. I've done that so often it has become a habit. You are a clever woman, Cynthia—I always knew that. Now I know you are unscrupulous, also. It is a bad combination. It has almost wrecked me. But, thank God, there is some manhood left in me. It is almost a miracle. But there is."

Cynthia was, as he said, clever. She knew that for the moment she could do nothing. Later, perhaps. This mood of his would not last.

"Goodnight, Steve," she said.

"I'll send for my things tomorrow," he said.

She heard the door close after him as he left the house.

There was no scandal attached to the divorce, but for days there was no gathering in Maplewood where it was not discussed. Everyone was amazed, everyone was curious as to the real reason.

Stephen and Cynthia Holland had everything—you, charm, money, position, a beautiful child. There had never been gossip, or the reason for it, about either of them.

What could have happened to decide them to declare their marriage a failure? No one was ever to know the answer to that question, for Cynthia and Stephen were equal in dignity and reserve.

ROBBERY SERIES FOLLOWS ESCAPE

Posse Trails Convict; Three Stores Burglarized, Auto Stolen, Wrecked.

SOPERTON, Ga., July 1.—(P)—A Treutlen county convict fled before a posse near Swainsboro today following the robbery of three stores here and the seizure of an automobile owned by H. C. Williams, a member of the State Board of Education.

M. A. Wells, warden of the state highway camp, said the convict, listed as E. J. Hamilton, 20, escaped under fire from the camp Wednesday night.

Wells said guards fired several shots at Hamilton as he fled on foot, but that he did not know if any of them struck the convict.

In Macon, police said a negro listed by the same name had terrorized a section of the city with a long series of burglaries before he was caught and sentenced. The police records at Macon also carried a notice of a previous escape last April.

Mrs. Williams reported she frightened the man away with her flashlight after he had taken money and car keys from the home at Adrian.

The Williams car was found wrecked on a curve. The convict continued on foot, but was believed to have been wounded in one shoulder by his pursuers.

Hamilton had served about six months of a burglary sentence, Soperton officers said.

98 FIGHTING PLANES ORDERED BY NAVY

U. S. Superior To Rest of World in Designing Craft, Says Johnson.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P) The army, placing a $14,433,196 order today for 98 fighting planes, took occasion to proclaim the United States is superior to the rest of the world in designing military aircraft.

The planes ordered include 13 "flying fortresses," 78 smaller bombers and seven stream-lined attack planes.

Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, asserted the flying

FORTRESS CROSSES U. S. IN 11 1-2 HOURS

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P) The army announced today that one of its 16-ton "flying fortress" bombers had flown non-stop 2,317 miles across the continent at an average speed of 204.6 miles an hour.

The flight, described by the army as "routine," was made Thursday in 11 hours and 20 minutes from March Field, Cal., to Lanfey Field, Va.

The plane flew at altitudes between 13,000 and 16,000 feet, its three officers and five enlisted men breathing stored oxygen.

fortress, a huge bomber, "is definite proof that America still maintains its position of leadership in aeronautical design."

This was true, he added, "despite the fact that other nations are spending many times the amount of money available in this country for that purpose."

The planes are the first to be purchased out of the $43,000,000 congress gave the air corps to buy 475 aircraft in the new fiscal year. About 700 new craft already were on order.

The army has some 1,400 first line planes in service now and expects to reach its goal of 2,320 of the most modern types two years hence, officials said.

The 13 four-motor flying fortresses were ordered from the Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle. They will cost $3,174,802.

Largest of the contracts was a $5,703,287 one with the Douglas Aircraft Company, Santa Monica, Cal., for 78 two-motor bombers.

A third order was for seven single-motor Vultee attack planes, of "streamlined" model.

"FLYING FORTRESS" CROSSES OVER GULF

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—(P) One of the army's largest bombers, a giant "flying fortress," arrived here today after a flight over the Gulf of Mexico from Brownsville, Texas.

The plane, commanded by Major Stanley M. Umstead, army chief test pilot at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, is to leave tomorrow morning for Dayton.

Haugwitz Denies Threats to Wife, Is Released Under Bond of $10,000

Agrees Not To Try To Communicate With Barbara Hutton and Not To Carry Firearms; Hearing Set for Tuesday.

LONDON, July 1.—(P) Dapper Darnish Court Haugwitz-Renewton was arraigned in Bow street police court today on a charge of threatening his fabulously wealthy wife, the former Barbara Hutton, so that she feared for her life.

The count was freed under 2,000 pounds ($10,000) bail and a hearing was set for Tuesday. His defense will be denied.

Before his release the Count satisfied the court he was not carrying a gun and he promised to keep away from the Countess and not to communicate with her.

The litigation was expected to end in separation or divorce of the nobleman and the blond, American-born heiress to Woolworth millions. They were married May 14, 1935, in Reno the day after her divorce from the late Prince Alexis Mdivani.

She Is Absent.

The Countess did not appear today, remaining locked within her Regent's Park mansion with the couple's two-year-old son, Lance, about whom the court quered.

They differed on questions regarding his bringing up.

The child yesterday was made a ward of the chancery court at the request of the Countess, but the Count does not now carry a fire-arm.

"I do not want to go into that," Birkett answered. "He has got a license to do so. But in the open court before Mr. Fry (the magistrate who first heard charges against the Count June 22), Sir Hamilton emphasized very strongly that the Count was in possession of a firearm."

"That firearm is now in his house in Regent's Park and it has not been in the possession of the Count at any material time."

The court asked the Count to promise not to carry a gun and not to see the Countess, to which he replied:

"I certainly give this undertaking."

Far From Happy.

The Count appeared far from happy. The bailiff sang out,

"Charge No. 13," and the Count stepped stiffly into the dock and bowed to the magistrate.

NORTHERN SPANISH BATTLE INTENSIFIED

See-Saw Engagements Are Reported Along Line Near Valencia.

HENDAYE, France, July 1.—(P) The Spanish frontier, July 1.—(P)—Battle for control of Spain's rich eastern coast developed in intensity tonight with Insurgents hammering their way through Bechi village just south of the Mijares river.

Insurgent dispatches said their forces swept government defenders from strong fortifications on the near-by slopes of Mount Ester and Solach.

A government communiqué, however, said Insurgent front lines had been driven back from Los Mallaes by a counter-attack on that advanced position.

The Insurgents declared they seized control of an important junction of foothill roads south of Rio Secco and east of Bechi after flinging planes and tanks into action ahead of their advancing infantry in the general push southward from the former line between Teruel and Castellon de la Plana.

Mount Ester is south of Fanzara, 15 miles west of Castellon de la Plana and 40 miles north of Valencia.

BODY OF MCCORMICK TAKEN FROM CLIFF

Indians and Climbers Labor From Dawn On at Their Grim Task.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 1.—(P)—Brought from the foot of Sandia peak under state police escort, the body of Medill McCormick, 21-year-old heir to a Chicago publishing fortune, rested tonight in an Albuquerque mortuary.

The final trip was made late this afternoon, after Indians and mountain climbers, who had been working since dawn to bring down the body from the jagged face of the cliff, had transferred their tarpaulin-wrapped burden to a waiting ambulance.

About 30 Indians and weather-beaten forest rangers stood by the ambulance, heads bowed, as Albert Simms, stepfather of the youth, said, "Mrs. Simms and I thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

Simms had watched the grim cortège for more than half an hour as it wound slowly over the rocky slope separating the waiting horses from the entrance to Canyon del Agua, on whose steep sides the body was found.

The difficult journey marked the close of an intensive eight-day search that started June 23 when McCormick disappeared on a mountain climbing expedition with Richard Whitmer, 20-year-old Princeton student.

Both boys apparently fell from the sheer heights of Sandia Peak, on one side and Whitmer on the other. Whitmer's broken body was found a week ago today, on the rocks under the west cliff of the peak.
